THE COOK SHOTS THE WAITER

Bloodshed On the Steamer Australia—A Startling Affair.

There are two "gangs" on the steamer Australia dealing in opium here. The members of the gangs are supposed to be "square" but recently there has been trouble because the smugglers tried to "do" each other.

So far, however, the rows have been confined to the "inner" circles, but yesterday while the liner was passing the Bell Buoy on her way to San Francisco a serious row took place which ended in the shooting of the chief waiter Gillespie, who now is beyond recovery at the Queen's Hospital.

His assailant, the chief cook, Wade, is in Oahu Jail with a bandage around his forehead.

There had been ill feeling between Wade, the cook and Sidney, the butcher, who both are colored men. When the steamer left it is claimed that Wade was drunk. He was looking Sidney and when for being remonstrated with by Gillespie, the head waiter, he pulled his gun and fired three shots at close range into the unfortunate man. Harry Evans and Chester Doyle, officers of the Honolulu Police Department, had just boarded the pilot boat to return to the city after their official duties were ended. They heard the shots and immediately boarded the steamer. Officer Evans, who was not armed asked the Captain for a gun. That gentleman who evidently took no interest in a trifling shooting among the crew referred him to Mr. Lawless, the chief officer, who furnished a loaded rifle and who with Mr. Doyle followed Evans to the place where Gillespie was lying prostrated and Wade was flourishing his revolver.

Two shots rang out from Wade's pistol, he shooting at but missing Evans and there came the shot from the officer's rifle which laid the assassin low without killing him, Mr. Evans aiming simply to put him hors de combat.

Wade was handcuffed before he recovered and Gillespie was temporarily attended to by Dr. McNulty, and both men brought ashore to be lodged respectively in the prison and in the Hospital.

There is no prospect of Gillespie recovering from the shots which lodged in his abdomen. It is stated among men familiar with affairs on board the Australia that Wade was "laying" for Chief Officer Lawless against whom he had a grudge and that Lawless who is one of the most popular seafaring men visiting this port was "ready" for him.

General Merriam Denounces the Rioters.

WARDNER, Idaho, May 5.—To-night at a conference with a number of Wardner business men, General Merriam declared against the establishment of a new military post in the Coeur d'Alene for the purpose of keeping down the dynamiters. The formation of a strong militia, he suggested, would be the best means of maintaining order after the present riots are effectually quelled.

"I have only abhorrence for such conditions as exist here," said General Merriam. "I would rather live under the tyranny of the Russian monarchy than live in terror of the mob such as rules in the Coeur d'Alene. I have tried in vain to discover what motives prompt men to such deeds of crime as have marred the history of the district. Since I cannot discover the reasons I am forced to the belief that the only way to quell these disturbances is by the aid of martial law—a one-man power, where gun shall be met with gun and dynamite with dynamite. Nevertheless, there are grave difficulties in the way of establishing a permanent military post here."
